WASHINGTON – President Donald Trump declined to discuss the letter to convicted sex offender Jeffrey Epstein that House Democrats released on Monday, calling it a “dead issue.”

"I don't comment on something that's a dead issue," Trump told NBC News in a brief phone call Tuesday morning. "I gave all comments to the staff. It's a dead issue."

He declined to discuss the issue further.

Democrats on the House Oversight Committee posted on X an image of a lewd note Trump allegedly sent Epstein for his 50th birthday. The letter was part of a slew of documents released Monday, which stemmed from a subpoena the GOP-led committee sent to Epstein's
